Weddings

MEYER-ANDERSON

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Tuesday evening, April 4, at 7:30 p.m., at Central United Church, Calgary, when Elsie Faye, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Meyer of Didsbury, became the bride of Haulace Elwood, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Anderson, Didsbury. Rev. A. L. Lawson performed the ceremony.

The bride looked lovely in a two-piece dress of powder blue crepe, with matching accessories. Her bouquet was of tallman roses and lily-of-the-valley. Mrs. L. W. Krebs attended the bride as maid of honor, wearing a two-piece dress of brown crepe, with matching accessories. Her corsage was of yellow carnations.

Robert Cullen, 3rd prize, price $19.50 per lb., weight 637 lbs.
Alex E. Pratt, 4th prize, price $16.50, weight 685 lbs.

Harold Pratt, 12th prize, price $16.50, weight 587 lbs.

The boys and girls are to be complimented on their success, especially so when the late date they received their calves is taken into consideration.

In the Hereford Baby Beef class, Don Robertson of Watcott, took 7th prize and the calf sold for 10c per pound.

Didsbury Jottings By A.C.H.

Mister Onion has gone to war. He has said goodbye to steak and onions and joined the medical corps. The Russians are using him as an antiseptic for wounds. They say the fumes from the raw onion lay germs out cold. Naturally! The poor things cry their eyes out, trip over a corpse, land in a cell and are done for.
No longer will the onion be an object of scorn. He will be the veg who won the war.

The I.O.D.E. are having a rummage sale on Saturday, April 29th. It is to be in the basement of the Knox United Church. Tea will be served in the afternoon. The sale will start at ten a.m. All contributions will be gratefully received. Just give them to your nearest I.O.D.E. You will know one when you see her. She has that soulful look. We know anything you have to give will help out a lot. Thank you.

As the farmer said when he finished plowing his field and leaving for home, "I'll be seeding you."

Allied Naval Supremacy

THE INCREASED MOMENTUM of land and air operations has made them the main topic of news and discussion in recent months, yet it should not be forgotten that the Navy is at all times playing a very active part in the great Allied offensive. The duties of the Navy in carrying troops and supplies to the fighting fronts are stupendous, and it is also a most important factor in all amphibious operations. Mr. A. V. Alexander, Britain's First Lord of the Admiralty, recently gave some interesting information concerning the work of the Royal Navy, when he presented the naval estimates for the approval of the House of Commons. Referring to shipping losses, Mr. Alexander stated that during the second half of 1943, less than one ship in a thousand, sailing in Allied convoys, had been sunk by enemy action. This figure was compared with the losses in 1941, when there were 181 in a thousand; and in 1942 when the losses were 233 out of every thousand ships.

Sub Menace Is Still Serious

A grim warning was contained in Mr. Alexander's message in regard to the submarine menace. Contrary to the opinion held by many people, that there is now no further danger from this source, he pointed out that Germany now has at least as many submarines as she had at the beginning of 1943, and that they have been provided with greatly increased fire power, a new acoustic torpedo, and possibly other improvements. They have also extended their field of operation into wider areas, including the Indian Ocean. There was the encouraging assurance, however, that the Mediterranean route to the East is now being freely used by ships of the Allied nations. "This route," Mr. Alexander said, "is worth about one million gross tons, and the liberation of North Africa and Italy together have brought in half as much again in actual shipping." When we recall the long and circuitous voyage which had to be taken by Allied ships before the Mediterranean was made safe, it is not difficult to realize the importance of this development.

Looks Forward To Offensive

Referring to the many offensive actions which lie ahead, the First Lord said that the Navy is looking beyond the struggle in Europe to the day when the full force of our resources will be directed against Japan. "When we hear open Japan for the final blow," he said, "our maritime forces will, more obviously than for generations past, be the cornerstone of our whole strategy. The Navy stands today in a more commanding position than it has held since 1940, strenuously preparing for further and greater responsibilities." Germany has devoted her naval efforts in this war largely towards submarine action and there have been relatively few engagements involving surface craft. In all naval actions which have taken place, however, the Royal Navy has shown that the splendid traditions of British seamanship are maintained, and the Royal Canadian Navy has likewise added honors to its already fine record.

May Be Perpetuated

Canadian Navy Likely To Have Another H.M.C.S. Weyburn

H.M.C.S. Weyburn, the Canadian corvette which went down with guns blazing in an engagement with an enemy submarine may be perpetuated in the Canadian navy.

Hon. Angus L. Macdonald, navy minister, said in the House of Commons that he would consider the assignment of the name Weyburn to another corvette. He said it was a common practice to reassign, after a certain time, the names of ships sunk in action.

GERMAN NAVY

Though laborious attempts are being made to re-condition the crippled battle cruiser "Tippit" in Kaa Fjord, not a stroke of work has been done for 18 months to repair the "Gneisenau," sister ship of the sunken "Scharnhorst." She lies with her bows and gun turrets dismantled in the Polish port of Gdynia, which has replaced bomb-battered Kiel as Germany's main naval base.

Winston Churchill

British Premier Is In A Class All By Himself

Winston Churchill is an old Tory. He is an old Liberal. He is a rank imperialist. He is a fervent democrat. But mainly he is one of those men who cannot walk into the House of Commons, or any house or place, without creating something of an electric shock, says The New York Times. He does not do this because he is Prime Minister. He is Prime Minister because he can do it. He is Prime Minister because he has made and projected an image of what the British people wish to be in this war: there he stands and there they stand, in courage so sure that they need never flume itself; in faith as strong as the British earth from which it springs; in cheerfulness that passes smiling into the dark Valley; in honesty of purpose; in loyalty; in even the most misunderstanding of friends.

YOUR VIEWPOINT

When the other fellow acts that way, he is ugly; when you do, it is nerves.

When he doesn't like your friends, he's prejudiced; when you don't like his, you're simply showing you're a good judge of human nature.

When he picks flaws in things, he's cranky; when you do, you are discriminating.

When he tries to treat someone especially well, he's toadying; when you try the same game, you are using tact.—Catholic Digest.

DEALING WITH SUBS

Since January 1st, 1943, ships of the Royal Navy and R.A.F. have sunk more than half of the German submarines fleet.

Price Control And Rationing Information

Q—I am expecting my daughter and her baby to arrive from New York to live with me. How can I get ration books for them?

A—If your daughter and the baby are staying in Canada for five days or more they are eligible for temporary ration cards; no card is good for more than 12 weeks. If they are staying longer than six months they may apply to your local ration board for a permanent ration book.

Q—My son, who is in the services, did not receive a ration card when he left camp to leave. Will he be able to get one at the local ration board?

A—No, all ration cards for short or long leaves must be issued by the unit before your son leaves camp. If he does not receive his ration card when he gets his leave pass, he should ask for it.

Q—My husband is a diabetic. Is there any way in which he can obtain extra rations of butter and meat?

A—Yes, provided he surrenders sugar coupons not required, he can apply to a branch of the ration and administration for such rations. The application must be accompanied by a statement signed by a duly licensed medical practitioner identifying his disease and indicating the extra rations in specified amounts that are required by him.

Q—I would like to know if there is a ceiling price on used cars.

A—Definitely yes, there is a ceiling price on all sales of used cars. The price, of course, depends on the year and model of the car; if it has any extras the price would differ. Write to your nearest regional office of the Board and they will give you complete information.

Q—Is the price of meat the same with the bone as with the bone taken out?

A—No. Meat charts, which are displayed in butcher shops, show the difference in price for cuts containing bone and boneless cuts.

Please send your questions or your request for the pamphlet "Consumers' News" or the Blue Book (the book in which you keep track of your ceiling prices) mentioning the name of this paper to the nearest Wartime Prices and Trade Board office your province.

Twenty-Foot Gadget Fastens New Type Of Sleeping Bag

A zipper twenty feet long, one of the longest of these gadgets ever manufactured, is the fastening device for a new type of sleeping bag developed by the U.S. Army Quartermaster Corps for evacuation of wounded soldiers by air, or by ambulance in cold climates. The bag, weighing twenty-four pounds, consists of two feather-quilted mattresses held together by a glide fastener extending around the four edges.

The voluble Mr. Spencer passed in her interminable gossip about the neighbors long enough to fix a proprietary eye on her husband and remark, "Dear, tomorrow will be our tenth wedding anniversary. I've been wondering how to celebrate it."

"Box your head and observe three minutes of silence," replied Mr. Spencer, without looking up from his paper.

OIL BEARING SEEDS

Objectives for 1944 in oil bearing seed crops are—flaxseed 2,800,000 acres, five per cent. below the 1943 average; soybean 10,000 acres, 75 per cent. more than in 1943; rapeseed, 147 per cent. above last year, and sunflower seed, 50,000 acres, a 72 per cent. increase over 1943.

Proper Diet

Toothache Days May Now End With Use Of Vitamin D

There's no fun in a toothache—no fun certainly for the poor sufferer—and none for the one who pays the bills!

Regular dental care is of course necessary for young and old—but proper diet for mothers and children can help reduce dentist bills by forming sound teeth which don't decay readily.

Dr. L. E. Pett, Director of Nutrition Services, Ottawa, explains that vitamin D is necessary so that the calcium obtained from milk and other foods can be used to form tooth enamel—which helps prevent decay.

Mothers need vitamin D before babies are born and while they are nursing and obtaining food from early babyhood through adolescence. Sunshine in contact with the skin in summer and fish liver oils in winter provide the sunshine vitamin D without which calcium cannot do its work of building and maintaining strong bones and sound teeth.

If children have not been getting some good source of vitamin D this winter, Dr. Pett advises mothers to start now with a daily dose of bottled sunshine, for it will be some time yet before the sun's rays are strong enough to replace fish liver oil as a source of vitamin D.

SMILE AWHILE

"Do you believe in love at first sight?"

"Oh, yes, but I can't recommend it."

"How is it that you let your wife have her own way?"

"I once tried to stop her."

Officer: "Don't you know what the crack of dawn is?"

Private: "Sure, what my wife used to give me when I came home at 4 a.m."

She: "You say a pat on the back develops character?"

Yes, if administered young enough, often enough and low enough."

Male Shopper: "Do you have notions on this floor?"

Salesgirl: "Yes, but we suppress them during working hours."

Nurse (to housemaid)—Baby's got her mother's complexion.

Father (from next room)—Nurse, are you letting that child play with those paints?

Farmer—Let me tell you, my friend, that horse knows as much as I do.

Friend—Well, don't tell anybody else; you might want to sell him some day.

"This crime," said the judge, summing up, "was carried out in an adult and selfish manner."

Blushing, the prisoner interrupted. "Come, now, my Lord, no flattery, please."

"I see one of our vessels is reported fast in the mud."

"Well?"

"It was just thinking that a ship fast in the mud ought to be a record breaker on the open sea."

"Did you get that cigar from a friend?"

"I don't know yet."

"Sometimes," said the mistress, "it will be necessary for you to help the butler upstairs."

"I understand, madam," replied the new maid, "when he had one too many."

The Immensity Of War Effort Of The Canadian Farmers Is Recounted By Lord De La Warr

THE following is the text of a speech delivered by Lord De La Warr to the Guild of Agriculturists in London, on February 25th: I only wish that I had the eloquence to be able to make others feel the inspiration of a visit to Canada in war-time—of feeling the warmth of their friendliness, of seeing what their farmers have been doing, of seeing too how interested they are in what we have been doing on our farms, in our increased production, in how we have done it, in how we are living and above all perhaps in how we faced and overcame the grim days of 1940.

Their intense interest in conditions over here, including anything that helped them to see into our personal lives, made me realize what a family affair the Commonwealth is, with that curious mixture of independence and unity that is perhaps the outstanding feature of the British Commonwealth. It is always dangerous after a short visit anywhere to indulge in impressions. Especially is this true of a country the size of Canada, with Ottawa being actually nearer to London than to Vancouver. Yet having travelled nearly 7,000 miles while in Canada and seen their Agricultural Research Stations and Colleges, having met Canadian farmers at their Annual Provincial and Federal gatherings, at their yearly Livestock Association meetings and on their farms, and finally having conferred with their farmer controlled wheat pools and Milk Boards, I could not escape forming some impressions.

The first of these is the immensity of the war effort of the individual farmer. We are rightly very proud here of what we have done on our farms. But that should not prevent us taking off our hats to the Canadians who with no more than 400,000 men from the land, have increased production by over 45 per cent. Figures are so sufficient about most of us know—sufficient about farming to realize what these figures must mean in terms of hard work on the part of the farmer. I will remember one old veteran of seventy when he told me of his annual sales of the farm, his only help his wife, a daughter and a son-in-law. I asked how he could possibly have managed. His reply was simply that they had worked a bit harder—and by heaven, so they had—four of them on 800 acres, too of whom one was carrying a pedigree herd of Aberdeen Angus and feeding 100 or more pigs.

My second impression is with regard to their farming of the prairies. Deterioration of these lands has certainly taken place. In some areas it is probably continuing to take place. But whether it is by changing their methods of ploughing, by giving up the burning of stubbles, by following land every other year in order to conserve the moisture, by damming rivers and streams or digging water holes, or by buying up literally millions of acres of land and making of it great areas of communal grazings scheduled never to be ploughed—they are tackling a very difficult problem with real vision and courage.

I've often talked of the crime of mining the soil, but I realize more than I did the difficulties that have had to be faced and the efforts that are being made to face them. My third impression was of the high standard of their stock, both pedigree and the general stock of the country. I don't want to give you a congested picture, and I realize that I had little time to get off the beaten track. But having travelled over 4,000 miles by train or car, I never once saw what one too often sees here, a field of 15 or 20 cows, some half Guernsey, some black and white (or perhaps grey) and the rest more or less Shorthorns, some with white faces and some with horns pointing skywards, suggesting at least a momentary intimacy with a Herford or Ayrshire bull. These things may exist in Canada, but I did not see them—and who could travel 40 miles let alone 4,000 in Great Britain, without seeing them a dozen times? I do not say this for the fun of running ourselves down. We know that our best stock is still the best in the world. But there is no point in travelling unless one is prepared to learn. Moreover, those of us who are prepared to fight for a far do for Agriculture in this country after the war must face facts if we hope to succeed. We cannot—in fact we have no right to expect to be able to build a prosperous British Agriculture on scrub stock—especially as Great Britain is essentially a stock-breeding country.

I cannot easily forget meeting in a wayside inn 12 or 15 farmers of less than 100 acres and of hearing them discuss milk records, butterfat tests, line breeding and calf hood vaccination. Their whole area was freehold and they were about to set up a cooperative artificial insemination centre. Unless we are going to allow ourselves to fall badly behind we shall have to wake up very considerably.

For an Englishman I was allowed what I felt to be the very great privilege of attending the annual conference of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture at Quebec. It was an impressive experience, both the public meetings and the private confer-

Late Irvin Cobb Once Tried Convincing For Life Insurance

When Irvin Cobb was a callow youth, anxious to earn some money of his own, he fell victim to the blandishments of a life insurance manager who sought to enlist him as field canvasser. Armed with a rate book Cobb hid himself to the estate of a prosperous farmer in the vicinity of Paducah, hoping to get a fat application.

He found the farmer out in the field behind a plow, while the warm Kentucky sun beat down on the dusty furrows. Cobb stayed with the farmer all morning talking of this and that, and the other thing but he could not find words to breach the topic of life insurance. Come noon-time the hospitable farmer invited Cobb to the house for dinner. A pleasant hour was spent and then they walked forth again for the field.

Come supper time the farmer again invited Cobb to the family table, where all did full justice to the ample fare. After supper Cobb stood by the farmer while he milked the cows and followed him around as he did his evening chores. They returned to the kitchen and eventually the other members of the family went off to bed. The farmer took off his shoes and stockings and began to toast his bare feet on the hearth of the stove, a polite intimation that he was strongly disposed to hit the hay himself.

Still Cobb sat patiently. At last the farmer, stifling a yawn, said, "Anything particular you wanted to see me about, Irvin?"

"Yes," answered Cobb quickly. "You don't want any life insurance do you?"

The farmer frankly disavowed any such desire and Cobb grabbed his hat and escaped. He escaped to a fascinating career of reporting and magazine writing, with a closing interlude on the silver screen, thoroughly convinced in his own mind that he did not have what it takes to make a life insurance man.—Fort William Times Journal.

In the Franco-Prussian war, besieged Parisians moved 88 persons and more than four million letters out of Paris by balloon.

Planes Rush Blood

Favourable Lake, Ontario, tiny Berens River mining community 300 air miles northeast of Winnipeg, is the smallest place in Canada operating a regular weekly blood donors clinic for the Red Cross. Dr. L. C. Bartlett, the mine's doctor, and the community's live-wire physician, has 125 donors signed up out of a total population of less than 300 white people, including children. Blood taken at his Monday night clinics, but for fat tests, line breeding and calf hood vaccination. Their whole area was freehold and they were about to set up a cooperative artificial insemination centre. Unless we are going to allow ourselves to fall badly behind we shall have to wake up very considerably.

Fitting Memorial Is Planned For The Airmen Who Gave Their Lives In The Battle Of Britain

THE airmen who gave their lives in the Battle of Britain will have their names enshrined in the Chapel of Henry VII in Westminster Abbey, the place of devotion set aside by the dour Tudor king more than four centuries ago. They, and their fellows who have survived, are those of whom Prime Minister Churchill spoke Aug. 20, 1940: "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

The commemoration will await the triumph of what they fought for, but after the war their 375 or more names will stand in illuminated letter on a roll of honor in a "Battle of Britain" memorial to which more than £10,000 (about $180,000) has been subscribed, more than double what was originally asked.

When Lord Trenchard, marshal of the R.A.F., and Air Chief Marshal Lord Dowding, the leaders of the "few", proposed the memorial, donations came from high and low, from Buckingham Palace and the Twickenbury club boy who sent in six shillings he earned singing Christmas carols.

The Chapel of Henry VII was built because that monarch wished to show his devotion to the Virgin Mary, wanted for himself and his consort a place of burial, and also a tomb in the Abbey for his predecessor, Henry VI.

The eccentricities of Henry VIII thwarted the last desire and the sixth Henry lies at Windsor.

The memorial will grace a chapel within a chapel, the eastern corner of this most eastern chapel in the Abbey. It was here that Oliver Cromwell, Admiral Robert Blake, his famed "General of the Seas", and other stout supporters were originally buried in the 17th century, only to be routed from their repose forever when the crown was restored.

The chapel has known many storied moments—the talents of the erratic Italian Pietro Torrigiani, one of the master painters of the world, who in 14 temperamental years built Henry's tomb and a superb high altar and molded the interior; the destruction of the altar by Sir Robert Harley, a "hot-brained zealot" in the days of the long parliament of 1643; its replacement with parts of the original in the 1630's, the burial of kings, the last of them George II in 1760, the brilliance of the installations of new knights of the order of the bath from 1725 to 1813, a ceremony ranked next in the public mind to a Royal Coronation, and revived by George V in 1913.

But its moment of high torment came with this war when, its interior prudently stripped of its elegance, a German bomb which struck the house of parliament across the street blew out its windows, pierced its wall and left a small, round hole which, because of what it stands for, will become part of the memorial.

The chapel today is forlorn, unused, chill in the dank cold of the English winter. Its interior is drab and lonely. The window which will bear the armorial devices of the squadrons which fought for the survival of Britain in those three months of 1940, is nakedly plain.

A dust cloth fills the hole which will live in history.

Sand bag upon sand bag sheltered the tomb in which Henry VII lies. But peace will bring to the chapel a new life, and when its splendor awaits the end of the war to find its place in Britain's story.

The "few" would wait it that way. They didn't start their fight and they didn't finish it, but it was they more than any other mortal men, who saw that it didn't go the wrong way.

The World of Wheat by H. G. L. Strange

WEEDS — THE CROP ROBBERS

Next to lack of rainfall, weeds undoubtedly are the main reason for low yields to the acre. Every weed plant that does not grow means one more money-making plant for the farmer; for a weed plant utilizes just as much precious moisture from the soil as does a useful plant. Large numbers of weeds are often seeded each year with the seed the farmer sows. To clean seed well, therefore, so that all weed seeds eliminated, is the very first step, and the easiest and most profitable step, that a farmer can take. This is easily said - not so easily done. It requires a good fanning mill and extreme care in the use of the proper screens and of the management of the fanning mill.

The next important source of weed infection is in the scattering on the fields of seeds from weed plants that are allowed to ripen. If a field is badly infected the sowing early of a crop, such as an early barley that can be cut before the weed plants set to seed, is another splendid method. The earliest crop is barley, and the earliest barleys are the feed barleys - Colless, Warrior and Olli.

ITEMS OF INTEREST IN THE WORLD OF FOODSTUFFS

A world shortage of some foods for several years after the war is predicted by the British Ministry of Food. The United Kingdom is reported to have purchased 40 million bushels of Australian wheat and flour - A U.S.A. wheat deficit within the next two years is seen as a possibility by some American observers.

The Australian government has granted farmers a slightly higher price for the 1944-45 wheat crop. Europe seems assured of good winter grain production again this year. Argentine shipments of wheat and flour since the first of the year are much higher than during the same period last year.

Be Ready to Buy MORE

● Invasion demands more action from every fighting service... combined operations. Combined operations include you, too.

Despite the shortage of help and equipment, Canadian farmers have responded nobly to demands for increased production of foods.

But there is one thing on which a better job can still be done.

MORE MONEY is needed to fight a more intensive war.

All Canadians will be asked to furnish this money. It's a duty that we who are at home owe to the men on the fighting fronts.

In these days most farmers have higher incomes... money to save. And that is the job that they are asked to do... save money and lend it to Canada.

You are not asked to give money... just to lend it. When the war is over you'll have this money to "plough back" into your farm. So save now to lend to your country. Save to have money to improve your farm; money for new stock and implements; money for more land or new buildings... for a new car... for new furnishings and conveniences for your home.

All you can lend is little enough for a cause so vital for a need so urgent. And the more that you can save and lend to your country now, the more you will have for your own use when the war ends.

Rural Housing

A building program to provide Canadian farmers and farm laborers with an average of 9,400 new houses annually for twenty years at an estimated total cost of $282,000,000 is recommended by the Report on Housing and Community Planning prepared by the Committee on Reconstruction.

The Committee recommends replacing 100,000 farm houses which are in such bad condition that it is better economy to replace them than to repair them. In addition it calls for the erection of 25,000 new farm dwellings to house farm families who are now sharing homes with other families.

Another 63,000 farm homes are needed to replace those which become obsolete and run down as time goes on.

It is recommended that this total of 188,000 new farm houses be regarded as a minimum target, and that the building of them be spread over a twenty-year period.

The Report suggests setting up a special rural division of the National Housing Administration, or a Farm Housing Advisory Committee in the Department of Agriculture to co-ordinate farm housing with other policies affecting land utilization, production credit, marketing arrangement, trade and price policies, and farm labor policy.

A proposed Farm Improvement Plan could be set up to provide for government subsidies on interest or on capital, and to grant long-term loans at low interest rate. It is also recommended that the Government pay mortgage insurance instead of the farmer.

Other recommendations include the erection of farm laborers' cottages and community centres, and the donation by the Federal government of electrical, plumbing, heating and refrigeration equipment to farm housing projects in return for the labor of installation.

SHRUBS

"Ornamental Shrubs and Small Trees for the Canadian Prairies" is the title of a new bulletin just published by Line Elevators Farm Service. The author of this bulletin is Dr. S. W. Elzein, Associate Professor of Horticulture, University of Manitoba. It is a very attractive publication containing descriptions of over a hundred shrubs and it is beautifully illustrated.

Farmyards and school grounds in the Prairie Provinces are, too often, drab indeed. Shrub plantations are not difficult to establish and require comparatively little labour to maintain. This new bulletin includes the essential information on planting and care of shrubs and, also, on planning the shrubbery. The reader can, therefore, make an intelligent selection, and secure information on landscape design as well as on care and maintenance. A list of commercial nurseries is, also, included.

Copies of the bulletin may be obtained from Line Elevator grain buyers, or from Line Elevators Farm Service, 763 Grain Exchange Building, Winnipeg, or 505 Herald Building, Calgary. The distribution is free to farmers, country school students and their teachers. This will be a very valuable addition to the parcels of agricultural literature which go from Line Elevators Farm Service to country schools almost every day.

This year, more than ever, each acre must produce more food to feed our Allies. Use of good seed will result in greater production. It will reduce production costs and give greater returns.

THERE ARE MORE GOOD REASONS FOR BUYING WAR BONDS THAN FOR BUYING ANY SINGLE THING EVER OFFERED TO THE CANADIAN PEOPLE

EVERYONE of us want to win the war—to see peace restored—to have jobs to get back to when the war is won.

MILLIONS of us, already in the Armed Services have dedicated time, effort, lives if need be, to the Nation.

The rest of us have not been called to arms. Our big chance to get into the fight is to buy the Sixth War Loan to the absolute limit.

This is the People's Loan and we, the People, will not fail—

We will not fail to buy Bonds—and keep them.

We will not fail to buy Bonds—and so help to keep Canada the kind of land they want to see when they come home.

REMEMBER—We are lending, not spending.

The money we lend is still ours to use in the years ahead when we need it most.

Handicapped Children

Do you know that Alberta children who are blind or deaf need not, because of this handicap, remain without an education? While there are no special schools for the education of such children within the province, the Government makes a generous provision for their training at special schools in other provinces. Those who are blind go to the Ontario School for the Blind at Brantford. During the present year 41 young Albertans who are deaf are in attendance at MacKay School in Montreal. Recently the Deputy Minister of Education visited this school and received a great welcome. MacKay School is a private institution founded years ago for the English speaking deaf of Quebec. Recently it has been enlarged so that it is now in a position to accept students from other provinces.

The Department of Education requests that anyone reading this news item will bring it to the attention of any parents of children either blind or deaf. It frequently hears of families who know nothing of this educational service. Provision is made for transportation, maintenance and tuition of the pupils. Costs to the parents include clothing and pocket money. The Department will be grateful to any one furnishing information of such children.

We Can Do Better

IN the past, wars have brought with them a high cost of living, ending with inflation.

This sapped the strength of nations and added poverty and injustice to the other tragedies of war.

Later it has led to falling prices and unemployment.

In this war, we Canadians are determined to head off this danger.

We have done much to avoid a repetition of the disastrous price rises of previous wars.

We have paid higher taxes. We have bought Victory Bonds. We have severely limited profits.

We have put a ceiling on prices. And to make it possible to hold the ceiling, wages and salaries have been controlled.

In one way or another most increased costs have been absorbed and very few passed on to the consumer.

Holding the ceiling has been a struggle. But the results have been worth while. From 1914 to 1919 prices rose 60%. From 1939 to 1944 the rise has been only 18%.

This effort of the Canadian people has been successful enough to be noted in other countries.

But we must continue to hold the line. We need not let history repeat itself. We can do better.

We can all help—

By cutting down unnecessary spending, and buying Victory Bonds instead.

By not hoarding or buying in black markets.

By not taking advantage of the war situation to press claims for higher prices, higher wages, higher rents or higher profits.

(This advertisement is one of a series being issued by the Government of Canada to emphasize the importance of preventing a further increase in the cost of living now and deflation later.)

10 Pound Sugar Allowed Canners.

The Prices Board announced Wednesday night that the forthcoming canning season each consumer may obtain an allotment of 10 pounds of sugar for canning purposes.

The board said the first five "F" coupons in ration book No. 3, each good for one pound of sugar for canning purposes.

The first five coupons, each good for one pound of sugar, will become valid May 25th and the second five valid May 17th.

The 1943 canning sugar allotment was approximately the same but last year's consumers had to apply direct to their local ration board for it.

Householders may convert the

"F" coupons into preserve coupons at the local ration board offices if they prefer to buy preserves rather than make them.

New Ration Books Start On April 13

The first of the coupons in the new No. 4 ration books to fall due will be sugar and preserves coupons that become valid in the hands of consumers on Thursday April 13. These are the red sugar coupons 30 and 31, and yellow preserves coupons 17 and 18.

The last of the coupons in the No. 3 book will fall due on the same day, when consumers will be obliged to carry both their No. 3 and No. 4 books with them if they wish to buy all the rationed goods to which they are entitled. This will be butter coupon No. 57.

The Local Ration Board points out that sugar, preserves and tea or coffee coupons belonging to the No. 3 book and as yet uncashed will continue to possess value for the purchase of rationed goods until they have been declared invalid. Due notice of such date of expiry will be given well in advance.

SINCE THE CALL TO ARMS

WITHIN AN HOUR of the opening of hostilities the Canadian National began what has proved to be the largest and one of the most exacting war jobs in Canada. This job has continued day and night without stop for four and a half years.

FROM SEPTEMBER 10, 1939 to March 10, 1944 the Canadian National carried more than 100 million passengers and 300 million tons of freight. Since the beginning of the war the Canadian National Dining Car Department has served 13,631,307 meals.

THE RAILWAY not only hauled away the completed munitions of war, but brought in the raw materials to make them. Without this two-way service, Canada's magnificent job of production could not have been carried out. The Canadian National itself builds mine-sweepers, 12,000-ton freighters, naval guns and gun mountings, aircraft components, and parts for other gun factories.

OF THE 100 MILLION PASSENGERS carried, a high percentage consisted of members of the armed forces proceeding to camps for training and to shipboard for embarkation.

STEAMSHIPS OF THE COMPANY, though reduced in numbers by sinkings through enemy action, have served gallantly in the war as auxiliary armed cruisers, hospital ships and transports.

CANADIAN NATIONAL Express and Telegraph facilities have worked to capacity to meet war demands.

The Canadian National's nine all-year hotels, situated in cities from the Atlantic to the Pacific, have provided service of an essential nature to those engaged in the war effort. All the Company's resort hotels are closed for the duration.

22% OF THE PERSONNEL in Company's service in 1939 have joined the armed forces. In Victory Loan campaigns Canadian National men and women have purchased bonds to the amount of $26,924,606.

TRANS-CANADA AIR LINES, subsidiary of the Canadian National Railways, has carried 435,000 passengers during the war, 9,417,000 pounds of air mail letters, and 1,476,000 pounds of wartime air express. ## for a NATION AT WAR

The Canadian National has been privileged to join with all the citizens of our country, including those who are serving in the armed forces, in the prosecution of the war. It believes that Canadians will be interested in this outline of some of the System's war activities.

Extracts from Annual Report of the Directors of the Canadian National System:

OUR OBJECTIVE IN 1943, as in other war years, was to place the full strength of our manpower and facilities behind the war effort of the United Nations. To this end all energies have been directed. The requirements of the armed forces, of industry and agriculture, for transport and other services, have been met in all of the nine Provinces of the Dominion and in the important sections of the United States in which we operate.

RECORD TRAFFIC

These demands were greater than ever before, the traffic moved in 1943 being 17.3% greater than in 1942, the previous peak war year, and 44.7% greater than in 1928, the peak peace year.

Freight traffic in 1943 was more than double that of 1939, and passenger traffic four times that of 1939.

Despite this, the very large movements of war materials and personnel reached their destinations in accordance with schedule arrangements. There was no lowering of the recognized standards of safety.

MANUFACTURE OF MUNITIONS

The Company also extended its activities as a manufacturer of munitions, ships and naval appliances.

EARNING POWER

The 1943 operations demonstrated the great earning power of the System, the railway proving again that it can handle an immense volume of business economically as well as expeditiously.

After providing from revenue for all operating expenses (including deferred maintenance, depreciation, amortization of defence projects and reserve for inventories) and also a reserve for pension contracts, taxes, interest on funded debt and Government loans, the surplus paid in cash to the Government was $35,639,412.

OPERATING EFFICIENCY

The operating ratio for the year was 73.64% (an all-time record) as compared with 76.93% in 1942 and 81.99% in the peak peace year of 1928.

It is interesting to note that the vastly increased war traffic in 1943 was handled with 16.6% fewer locomotives, 15.4% fewer freight cars and 5.1% more passenger cars than was the traffic of 1917, the fourth year of the last World War.

SPECIAL SERVICES PROVIDED

The Company was honoured in being selected to provide extensive train and other services for Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Madam Chiang Kai-shek during their visits to Canada in 1943.

POST-WAR

Changing conditions will call for new methods of railway operation and new types of service, and there must needs be a continuing search for improvement in all aspects of the railway industry. In view of this, the Company has in hand a programme of research. This programme, in addition to considering ways and means of improving service and efficiency of operation, also encompasses the problems of post-war reconstruction and rehabilitation.

THE OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES in all departments of the System have worked hard and loyally to cope with increased responsibilities arising out of the war, and the directors record their appreciation and thanks. The traditional harmonious relations between management and employees were maintained throughout the year. Appreciation also is expressed to shippers and the travelling public alike for their cooperation in and sympathetic understanding of difficult operating conditions caused by the war.

Approximately 30 varieties of soybeans are grown on farms in the North American continent. It is estimated that there are more than 2,000 varieties of this bean, a native of China, in the world.

BROADCASTING OUTFIT

When Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery leads British invasion forces into Europe, he will take with him a complete broadcasting house on wheels. Named "Golden Arrow" after the pre-war Paris bus train, the broadcasting unit comprises seven vehicles: a transmitter, a receiver, two generators, two trucks and an officers' car.

Polly Is A Wog

Women's Division Give Orders To Pilots When They Go Aloft

It doesn't matter how high they fly these days, pilots in the Royal Canadian Air Force must submit to the sweet, gentle, but nonetheless, firm reminder that there is a Women's Division to their branch of the Canadian armed forces—a reminder in the form of the voice of a "Lady-Wog".

"Wog" is a word short for Wireless Operators Ground, and it isn't very long ago that the first batch of women underwent the six-month training course and were graduated from Wireless School and posted to various air stations. Most of the pilots seem pleased with the change. Now when a lad goes aloft it's a Lady-Wog who gives him his routine orders.

Proof that they are competent lies in the fact that recently one group of Lady Wogs assumed full control of a Western broadcasting studio for a whole day. They carried out in full all the detailed jobs involved in the operation of a radio station. Some did the announcing, others took charge of the control room. A network appearance, with the current grain prices, unscheduled and by accident, was handled with dignity and aplomb that drew congratulations from several country grain elevator operators.

In spite of the fact that they are engaged in work usually handled by men, Lady Wogs don't seem to have forgotten that they're feminine. Not by a long shot! The men who instructed the first group were rather amazed at the way in which the girls mastered the arrangement for the letter "Q", usually a difficult one for men. On enquiry, they were reminded in no uncertain terms by the girls that the Morse for "Q" is "dah-dah-dit-dah", which they interpreted as the opening strains of the Wedding March from Lohengrin.

Sunflower Production

Another Worthwhile Contribution To The War Effort

Until recently the production of the sunflower in Canada was restricted chiefly to its use for ensilage in areas not suited to the production of corn, and to a lesser extent in the garden, where it served to provide seeds which were eaten much as peanuts are, or as a border flower.

Interest in the sunflower as a grain crop came about largely because of the shortage of edible vegetable oils in Canada soon after the outbreak of the present war, states Dr. E. M. Stevenson, Dominion Agronomist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

The ensilage varieties which were tall growing and late maturing, were not suited as a grain crop in most areas. However, other types were available. Canadian plant breeders had, some years prior to the outbreak of war, recognized the possibility of using the sunflower as a grain crop chiefly as a source of vegetable oil. They set about to develop varieties suitable for grain production on a large scale. They decided first of all that such varieties must be semi-dwarf in habit of growth and early maturing so that they could be harvested satisfactorily by ordinary farm machinery. Furthermore, the new varieties had to meet certain standards of perfection respecting oil content and oil quality.

The two outstanding varieties which resulted from that work are "Sunner" and "Mennonite". Approximately 20,000 acres of these varieties were grown for grain in the prairie provinces in 1943. It is estimated that this crop will yield over 18½ million pounds of seed. This crop is capable of providing 4½ million pounds of high quality edible oil and more than 2,250 tons of excellent, high protein oil meal suitable for stock feed. In addition there will be an abundance of seed available to enable us to meet the 50,000 acre objective set for 1944.

The development and production of sunflowers for grain constitutes another worthwhile contribution from agriculture to the war effort.

DOMINION DAY HOLIDAY

The Toronto Star says: Commencing with 1943, Dominion Day was to be celebrated on the first Monday in July as a wartime measure. Before July came around, however, the proposal was abandoned and the holiday was observed on the usual date. It is announced that it will be so observed this year—on Saturday, July 1—although some of the calendars issued for 1944 have July 3 marked. The "first Monday" proposal has evidently been dropped for good.

Western Industries

Large Coal Reserves May Prove To Be A Factor

The possible development of huge industries in the western provinces of Canada based on large coal reserves there was foreseen by Nova Scotia Minister of Mines L. D. Currie. Currie, speaking in the N.S. legislature, warned that the day might not be far off when this province's coal mines would face an even tougher fight for markets than at present.

Nova Scotia today is a major Canadian coal producing area but possesses only one per cent. of the dominion's coal reserves, he said, adding that the bulk of the dominion's coal lay in the west.

Tip For The Hostess

New York Lady Found Way To Entertain Soldiers

A lady in a New York suburb invited several Anzacs to have dinner with her family. Afterwards, she asked the boys what they'd like to do—there was the ping-pong table, or cards, or the phonograph. But the soldiers shook their heads and one of them said:

"To tell you the truth, ma'am, we've been running a bit short on money. And these New York laundries are expensive, and..."

The lady led her guests down to the laundry room, turned on the washing machine. The visitors had a fine time.

DEFILED

Some of the young boys in uniform try hard to appear grown up and sophisticated. One of this type was in a night-club group recently. As a mature cabaret singer danced near his table he whistled and asked, "Hey, babe, what you doin' after you get through here tonight?"

The singer looked at him compassionately. Leaning over tenderly, she said: "I'm going home to take care of my little boy, who is just about your age."—Lee Shipley in Los Angeles Times.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY— Happily Ever After

By ABBIE YOUNG

McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Mollie could not remember getting on the bus. After the fight with Joe she had gone out and walked and walked. But here she was, sitting at the top in the rear seat and Joe had always laughingly said was reserved for them. While Joe was courting her they had taken the Fifth Avenue bus to the end of the line and back almost every evening.

They had planned to do big things when they were married, but life hadn't worked out just as they expected. Three years now, and Joe had received only one raise. But Mollie had realized a little bit of her dream. A small flat roof topped out from the dingy window of their top story apartment, and that provided Mollie's longed-for penthouse. She had managed to raise a few scraggy plants in flower boxes, had painted the kitchen (which led on to the roof) green—the garden room. The tiny living room she had furnished in black and white—the modernistic touch.

She'd been very happy until Joe's other dad and his mother came to live with them. After that, with her mother-in-law's laundry strung over the kitchen window so you couldn't see out of it, even Mollie's imagination couldn't convert the place into a penthouse.

This morning Joe's mother had been away for the day. Mollie and Joe had planned a dozen things to do to make the most of it. And yet—the minute they were alone they had turned on each other!

The nerves of both must have been at breaking point. But that didn't excuse Joe. Suppose she had started picking his mother's clothes off the chairs and tables and then, suddenly, thrown them out the window? If he'd been home all day, every day, with that mess as long as she had, he'd have thrown them too!

So when he'd said cuttingly, "That's the way you feel about my mother, is it?" she'd gone to pieces and told him just how she did feel—about his mother, about his job and the non-existent bank account, and about him, too. When he should have comforted her, Joe had grabbed her shoulders and shaken her. Mollie had wrenched free and flung out of the apartment.

The bus stopped at a corner and Mollie found herself looking straight into the eyes of a young man in a limousine. He grinned and nodded the seat beside him. Mollie turned quickly away, but at the next stop there he was again. Suddenly Mollie rose. She didn't intend to accept the man's invitation; she just couldn't stand the associations any longer.

He was waiting for her at the curb. "Could I interest you in a cocktail party?" he asked.

Mollie would have walked on, but he caught her arm. "Come on, kiddie," he urged, "I'm no big, bad wolf. It's just that my date fizzled out. And you looked so forlorn up there all alone—"

The kindliness in his tone brought quick tears to Mollie's eyes. "I—I think it would do me good," she said. Mollie scarcely heard Dale Bushman's cheery conversation during the short drive. Surprisingly, she twisted off her wedding ring and dropped it into her bag.

They drew up before a smart apartment building. The elevator shot up and up and, to Mollie's astonishment, they emerged at the penthouse apartment. It was all she had ever dreamed, and more. Vast, shiny, modernistic. Through French windows she glimpsed real trees and sky.

A tall girl came forward. "Hello, Dale," she said, "help yourselves. And for goodness' sake think of some thing to do. The party's dying on its feet." Then she drifted away.

Mollie saw Dale talking to a girl in a bright red dress. Unnoticed, she walked out on the terrace. She heard a swish of silken skirts. "You like it?" It was the tall girl, she had ever dreamed, and more. Vast, shiny, modernistic. Through French windows she glimpsed real trees and sky.

"Oh, yes!" The lump in Mollie's throat made her voice sound queer. "It's so big!"

The girl looked at her searchingly.

"Yes, it's big," she agreed. "And while it's beautiful to you, it might seem ugly to someone else. Someone who—well, who didn't have anyone with whom to share it."

"You mean you live alone?" Mollie asked.

The girl's tone was bitter. "Yes, I live alone. And when I can't bear it any longer, I call in that gang inside. We have much in common. Dale is still in love with his ex-wife—the girl in the red dress—and produces somebody new every day to kid people into thinking he isn't. His ex-wife is married to my ex, and thinking of shedding him for someone else. And I—" she shrugged.

"I—I must go," Mollie choked. She knew, suddenly, that she must get to Joe before it was too late. She must tell him that he was all that mattered to her. At the window she paused. "I hope," she said softly to the girl, "that some day you'll have as much as I have."

"That's the way to talk," the girl smiled. "You'll have to forgive me for making up that yarn about myself. Maybe, being in love, I've gone sticky with sentiment. You see, I'm getting married next week—for the first time. I like to believe the bride and groom live happily ever after."

Mollie stared at her in confusion. "What do you mean?"

Her hostess laughed gayly. "Next time you remove your wedding ring, child, remember that white circle doesn't match your sun tan."

A Fine Tribute

Paid To Men Of The Royal Canadian Air Force

The following is from a speech by Air Minister Fowler in the House of Commons:

"Eleven thousand does not seem so very great a number in a war which has engulfed so many million lives."

"Nevertheless every single one of these gallant lads taken away by the grisly mechanism of war was the pride and hope of some Canadian family. Every life sacrificed represents an irreparable loss to the Canadian nation."

"These boys came from families in every walk of life, from rich and poor alike, from those in high places and those in low, from the farm, from the city, from high school and college and university. We ourselves in this house have not been immune, six of our members have lost their dearest and best."

"They were a cross section of the youth of a democracy, the least professional of soldiers, the most glib of citizens. Living the young lives under varying conditions, in different atmospheres in this Canada of such divergent views and interests, they found a common patriotism and a common purpose."

"They, on the threshold of their manhood, developed a magnanimity of soul and a lofty and heroic love of country. Looking at the future as they did, with the wisdom of ages peering out of boyish eyes, they counted the cost, they calculated the risk, yet remained through it all serene and undaunted."

"Let their selfless endeavor, their common patriotism, their unswerving purpose, be an example to us in our Canadian task."

Famous Beaver Club

Canadian Boys Use Its Many Services The Year Round

Beds in the Canadian Y.M.C.A.'s London clubs and the one in Harrogate were used 189,961 times last year by Canadian servicemen. Ed. Otter, senior War Services supervisor overseas, states in his annual report.

The famous Beaver Club fairly overflowed with Canadians all year round, says Otter. More than 471,000 participated in the "Y" War Services program, and miscellaneous services—which might be anything from sewing on a button to wiring flowers—were provided on over 3,000,000 occasions. Altogether, Beaver Club facilities were used by Canadians last year 3,043,265 times.

GARDEN NOTES

Transplanting

Successful transplanting depends on two factors: (1) the purchase of good, healthy, stout stock, and (2) exposing the roots as little as possible to the air. Set out stock on a dull day or in the evening, say the experts. Firm down the earth well around the plant, tree or whatever is being transplanted, and water well. With big trees—six or seven feet high—this may mean a pall of water each, and every few days if possible. With small things like tomatoes or corn, a pint or so around each plant will be sufficient. Earth around the roots should be fine and of good fertility, and it should be kept well cultivated while the plant is getting established.

There is a lot of transplanting connected with gardening. In vegetable gardens a great many things such as cabbage, celery, tomatoes and peppers are usually bought as started plants from seedsmen or greenhouses and set out in permanent quarters, while almost any flower—perennial as well as annual—can be purchased in this way. The same, of course, applies to all manner of shrubs, fruit and ornamental trees, shrubbery, roses, vines, etc.

Vegetables Needed

The shortage of food during the war has resulted in a shortage of vegetables this summer. Consumption, due to greatly increased employment in the war factories, has been going ahead by leaps and bounds, and the market gardens on the outskirts of the big cities are getting smaller because it is so difficult to get help and machinery.

First Planting

There are some things which must get their first growth while the weather is cool and moist. In this print and shrubs, vines and trees and other nursery stock, one can hardly plant these too early.

There are also the flowers which normally seed themselves, things like cosmos, corn flowers, marigolds and alyssum. Grass is also in this category.

In vegetables among the earliest ones there are several that must get their growth in cool weather. These include peas, spinach, onions, curly endive, radish and lettuce. One can start to plant all of these just as soon as the driest part of the garden is ready.

With most vegetables, the experts advise making at least three sowings, about ten days to a fortnight apart. In this way the gardener is protected against damage which might wipe out one sowing, and the season of garden fresh vegetables will be greatly extended.

here. He came out by aeroplane to Edmonton.

Melvin Notes.

Mrs. Geo. Youngs left Thursday for Nova Scotia to visit her mother, who has been very ill.

Red Cross is at Mrs. W. Summer's this Thursday, the 13th, overseas boxes will be packed.

Don't forget the big dance at Melvin this Friday, in aid of the Didsbury & District Tobacco Fund.
Tom Smith and his Mandarins of Calgary will supply the music.

Miss Arlyne Cahoon spent Easter at her home in Cardston. Miss Gwen Caldwell returned with her Monday evening to visit for a few days.

On Monday evening about 40
members of the Melvin club enjoyed a delicious hot supper at the hall, served by the ladies of the club. Home-made ice cream and cake really topped it off, and there was loads of it. A circular letter was written to John Landen and to Sid Summers, both former active members of our group. It is at club activities of this sort we really miss them.

Rugby Notes

With an attendance of nine, the W.L. meeting was held at the home of Mrs. D. Hoesgood. After the days business was completed
Mrs. A. Shannon gave us a very interesting article on "Waste made useful", specially mentioning the late Dr. Carver of Alabama, who spent most of his life trying to help his fellow men.
Most of his research work was in making different products from peanuts and sweet potatoes, also paper from sunflowers, synthetic marble from wood shavings, and various other products. She also gave us the last report on Home Economics and Handicrafts. The meeting came to a close with the National Anthem.

In May we will visit with our Constituency Convener, Mrs. A.
Hogg, for our W.L. meeting, and each member is expected to contribute an item for the afternoon program.

Notes From the West.

A very pleasant time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J.
Bagshaw last Thursday, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Les Barnard, who are leaving the district to make their home in Sask. Six tables of whist were played and one of chinese checkers. Hours for whist went to Mrs. Campbell and Mr. Hogg, and consultations to
Mr. J. Luft and Mrs. W. Banting.
Mr. Campbell presented the guests of honor with a rose-colored wool blanket, and some war savings stamps to little Stanley, with best wishes for good luck in their new home.

About 25 of the younger people charivariated Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hutchinson (nee Barbara Byrt).
Wednesday evening of last week.
Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson have been visiting the latter's parents for the past week.

Mrs. S. Johnson and Mrs. Edmundson of Carstairs, spent the Friday holiday with their mother.
Mrs. C. Kenschuh.

L/Cpl. M. Campbell of Red
Deer, was home over the weekend, and Pte L. Banting is home on spring work leave.

Miss Pitt spent the weekend in Calgary.
